Eurohypo launches first Commercial Real Estate Community on the internet “Ourbania” platform becomes virtual meeting point for the real estate industry

Eschborn. Eurohypo has launched the first Commercial Real Estate Community on the internet with the “Ourbania” project. This virtual meeting point for the global real estate industry has been accessible since the start of October at www.ourbania.com. The range of interactive pages available is intended for developers, investors, facility managers, investment bankers, analysts and real estate evaluators as well as architects and town planners.

One of the features provided by “Ourbania” is a global directory of commercial real estate projects, which is continuously being developed. The objective of this is to create an overview of globally regarded commercial real estate projects by compiling relevant facts and photos. Anyone interested can use the quick and targeted search function to search the globe for any appropriate properties, such as Frankfurt’s Opernturm or the Petronas Towers in Kuala Lumpur, via a filter. The integration of google.maps also produces an interactive map. Any internet user can search for, adjust and edit projects. The content of the platform should become steadily larger and more diverse due to the growing user community. All the projects can be commented on, discussed and assessed in the “Ourbania blog”.

“Ourbania”, which was jointly designed and developed by Eurohypo and the media company Gesellschaft für Kommunikation mbH, is already Eurohypo’s second largest interactive project on the internet after the blog site www.perfectcity.net. With this project, Eurohypo is again emphasising its leadership in innovation and in the field of web communications.
